The people behind Wandatrak

August 2009

No I do not do all the work. I do have a team of dedicated volunteers who give up their time making sure the programme is running well. I will introduce all of these people over the coming months.

First, Delanie Halton, works for the police as an Administration Officer and is a senior member of Auckland Land SAR. Delanie is responsible for the control of the pendants, publicity, fundraising, and talks to families issuing pendants when my work load is too great, which is often

Funding

We have just received another generous donation from Kiwi Community Trust. This allows us to purchase more pendants and another tracking unit which will be located in South Auckland.

The Last Word

I am leaving the last word this month to a daughter of a person living with dementia and wearing a wandatrak pendant

Dene Duthie.

Thank you for finding dad again tonight - you and your team have really helped us through- putting stressful, worrying situations right with your skill and kindness time and time again. The wrist device dad now has, thanks to you, has allowed us to keep him at home - away from the institutions we know would break his spirit. Thank you!! He is a handful at times :) but we have piece of mind which makes it so much better.
